

Editorial

It is very exciting to publish this first issue of the Journal of Global Economics and Business (JGEB), which is a lengthy and challenging process. The honor of producing the first publication of this valuable academic work belongs to the real heroes, namely the editorial team and revivers. Without their contribution, this journal would not be published.

There are authors from many different universities and respective departments that make the real success of the JGEB. All fresh and exciting articles will promote the level of academic development in different branches of management sciences, humanities and social sciences.

It is a noble pleasure to call for new submissions in the social sciences and humanities.

Hope to see you in the next issue!

Bilal Celik, PhD.

Chief Editor

Nile University of Nigeria